

MILLER URGED TO SAVE
NEGRESS FROM DEATH*Hattie Dixon's Lawyers Say
She Is Not Murderess.Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
New York Herald Bureau, Albany, June 11.

It rests with Gov. Miller whether Hattie Dixon, negress, of New York, is to be the second woman to be put to death by law in this State.

The woman was convicted of murder in the first degree in that she persuaded her fifteen-year-old son, Theodore, and another boy, Theodore Scott, to kill sixteen-year-old Mary Morton. Her case was pleaded to-day at a hearing before Gov. Miller.

Her attorneys declared she was absolutely free from guilt and that a chain of circumstantial evidence, caused mainly by her mother love and her desire to shield her son, had been thrown about her. The plea also was made that she should not be put to death as the two boys who actually committed the murder did not get the maximum penalty.

Young Dixon is now serving a life sentence, while Scott, who turned State evidence and implicated Mrs. Dixon, got from five to eighteen years.

Gov. Miller did not indicate his attitude. He said he would give the case deep consideration.
